Use of KI for written work in Development Studies

Starting in the summer semester of 2026, all written work in this programme (term papers, essays, Master's theses, etc.) that is not produced under direct physical supervision must include the following declarations, which must be clearly attributable to the work and signed:

Declaration 1

"Hereby, I solemnly declare that I have completed this work without any unauthorised assistance from third parties and without using any resources other than those specified in this document; any ideas taken directly or indirectly from other sources and authors have been identified as such. This expressly includes the direct or indirect use of text generation software supported by artificial intelligence. Furthermore, I declare that I have not used any commercial writing assistance services. This work has not been submitted in the same or a similar form to any other examination authority, either in this country or abroad, and has not yet been published. I am aware that any violation of the contents of this declaration will result in at least a fail grade for the examination."

[Copy the declaration and insert the text in your work under the headline 'Declaration 1'.]

Declaration 2

Please state to which aspects of this assignment/ essay/ paper/ thesis AI-related tools and applications have contributed. Name the applications in your report. For example: "ChatGPT, DeepL and Claude.ai contributed to the following aspects of this thesis: literature research, programming, data analysis, review and editing, language improvement, visualization."

Please note that copying AI-generated texts that are not based on your own (preparatory) work in their entirety will be considered plagiarism. Lecturers may restrict the permitted use of AI, up to and including a complete ban on its use. This must be announced in the course materials.

[Answer the question above according to the standards set by the individual examiner. If no other standards were set, draft your answer based on the example above. Use the headline 'Declaration 2'. Do not forget to date and sign the declarations page.]
